

초성 ㄱ·ㅋ·ㄲ 소리 구별하고 읽기

Practice distinguishing and pronouncing initial ㄱ (plain), ㅋ (aspirated), and ㄲ (tense). Use clear English sound anchors: ㄱ ≈ a light sound between English g and k, ㅋ ≈ the k in "key," ㄲ = tense "kk" with no exact English match. Read and choose simple words that begin with these letters.

WHAT THIS IS FOR

Beginner learners will accurately hear and pronounce ㄱ (plain), ㅋ (aspirated), and ㄲ (tense) in word-initial position, connect them to helpful English sound references (ㄱ ≈ between English g and k, with a light puff of air, ㅋ ≈ k in "key," ㄲ = tense "kk," no exact English equivalent), and correctly read and select simple words containing these initials.

1 THE LETTERS

LETTER	SOUND	TRACE AND COPY
ㄱ	Plain (lax) consonant. The back of the tongue lightly closes against the soft palate, then releases. At the start of a word, a light puff of air comes out: weaker than ㅋ and softer than ㄲ. between English 'g' and 'k' (light puff)
ㅋ	Aspirated consonant. Same tongue position as ㄱ, but released with a strong puff of air. 'k' in 'key' (strong puff)
ㄲ	Tense consonant. Same tongue position as ㄱ, but the throat and tongue are tensed and the sound is released sharply, with no puff of air. tense 'kk' (no exact English)
