

오늘 뭘 먹어요? 뭘 사요? — 을/를

Learn to use the object particle 을/를 (spoken short form ㄹ) to show what you eat, buy, watch, or do.

WHAT THIS IS FOR

By the end, you can choose 을 or 를 based on the last sound of a noun, use the short spoken form ㄹ (뭘, 이것), and put the particle on the object in simple everyday sentences.

1 THE PATTERN

Noun + 을 The noun ends in a consonant (it has a final consonant, 받침).	Marks the object: the thing that the action is done to.	저는 아침에 빵을 먹어요. I eat bread in the morning.
Noun + 를 The noun ends in a vowel (no final consonant).	Same meaning as 을. Only the shape changes.	주말에 친구를 만나요. I meet a friend on the weekend.
Noun + ㄹ In casual speech, after a vowel. 를 becomes ㄹ and joins the noun: 무엇을 → 뭐를 → 뭘, 이것을 → 이것.	Same meaning as 을/를. It is shorter, and you hear it a lot in speech.	점심에 뭘 먹어요? What are you having for lunch?

2 WATCH OUT

물 (X) → 물 (O): ㄹ is a final consonant too, so use 을.

커피가 좋아해요 (X) → 커피를 좋아해요 (O): 좋아하다 (to like) takes 을/를. (커피가 좋아요 is also correct.)

시간을 있어요 (X) → 시간이 있어요 (O): 있다 and 없다 do not take 을/를. Use 이/가.
